PIANOS MIST BE TENTED FOR THIS CLIMATE.

Many Instruments of Fine Eastern Reputation Will Not Stand Dry Climate.

Southwestern people who contemplate the purchase of a plane will find it to their interest to remember that although there are a host of good planes on the American market, only a few of them have proved their adaptability for continued use in a dry climate. Many instruments which have won enviable reputations in the north—where the climate is damp—have shown themselves utterly unreliable after a few years of use in the dry climate of the southwest, and this fact should be most seriously considered by prospective local purchasers. There is just one way to avoid a mistake of this kind. Buy an instrument which has successfully atoof the hard test of time. Such tested instruments can be had at the El Phao Plane Co. W. R. Schulz, Prop. 298 (south side) Texas Street, because this house, the oldest in the city, has spent the past 191-2 years making the required tests. The El Paso Plane Co. offers you the benefit of their experience, and recommends the Steinway. Everett, Fischer, Harvard, Stroud and Weber.—Adv. A High Compliment.

Just think of running from 11 a. m. fill 11 p. m. without a pause, 12 hours daily! Yet this is the very rusk of the Antomatic Musical instruments in El Paso's motion picture theaters. Out of the 12 theaters in El Paso now using Automatic musical instruments, after having tried the "Rest," eleven (11) have now selected and purchased the "Best" (the Wurlitzer). This is indeed a ligh compliment for the "Wus-litzer" and a pretty clear indication of the recognized superiority of these instruments; especially since some of them have been running 12 hours daily for nearly three years; and are right now the pride of the owners.
